

NO-BURN® DEALER TREATS KANSAS CITY HOME FOR EXTREME MAKEOVER: HOME EDITION

NO-BURN® has again treated a home for the hit ABC show, Extreme Makeover: Home Edition. This time the house was for a Kansas City Firefighter, Stephen Johnson, a single father who works as a firefighter, barber and window washer to help support his family. Besides raising three children of his own, he took in two neighborhood boys from the foster care system after their adoptive mother died. On February 23, 2004, Johnson led a team of firefighters through heavy gunfire to save Metropolitan Ambulance Services Trust paramedic Mary Seymour, who had been shot by a sniper who waited for emergency crews after setting his house on fire. Seymour survived.

The local Kansas City area NO-BURN® dealer first heard that Extreme Makeover: Home Edition was coming to the area from his sister. He then sent an email to the show, and also got contact information through Ken Rusk, Vice President of NO-BURN® who participated in another Extreme Makeover: Home Edition show that was filmed in Washington State last fall.

The contact from the show called the dealer on Friday, April 1st and asked him how soon he could be at the build site. He and his partner arrived within a few hours and sprayed all of the floor trusses while they were still on the flatbed trucks.

The dealers went back to the build site on Saturday, April 2nd in hopes of treating the entire structure, but due to the number of people in and around the home, it was not feasible, so they treated the attic and utility room with NO-BURN® Original,

They were there again on Monday evening (April 4th) from 5pm to 3am. They were told to be there by 5pm as the carpet would be laid then. The carpet didn't actually go in until 2am, so they helped out where needed while they were waiting. Right after the carpet was laid, they treated the basement carpeting with NO-BURN® Fabric Fire Gard.

They say that "it was the best experience in their lives".
