

NO-BURN® TREATS MAINE HOME FOR ABC HIT SHOW EXTREME MAKEOVER: HOME EDITION

AIRED NOVEMBER 13, 2005

No-Burn® has again treated a home for the ABC show Extreme Makeover: Home Edition when the show built a log home for the family with help from 2,000 volunteers.

The house was built for Doug Goodale and his family. Eight years ago, Goodale, a lobsterman, lost his right arm when he was forced to cut it off after it got caught in a winch. It's been a struggle to support his family ever since.

But Doug didn't let the loss of his dominant arm stop him from picking up the pieces of his life. Though extremely difficult, he somehow taught himself to fish with only one arm and even rebuilt his boat. Unfortunately, due to the diminished wages of a lobster fisherman now operating with one arm, plus lost wages and massive medical bills, Doug is unable to repair his family home. The furnace, windows and chimney were literally falling apart, making it difficult to heat the house -- a significant problem, considering they live in one of the coldest climates in the country.

No-Burn® treated the tongue-and-groove paneling for the walls and ceilings of the home off-site.
